"We Bring Extraordinary Stories To Life"

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE TO THE WOODFORD SUN, VERSAILLES, KY

Underwriting Support for Woodford Documentary Surpasses Halfway Mark

PRINCETON, KY—January 19, 2012—Award winning Kentucky film production company, Marvo Entertainment Group LLC, announces that underwriting support for the two-hour documentary, "My Kentucky Home: Woodford County," has passed the halfway mark with the addition of Pisgah Community Historic Association, Calmes Family Association, Midway College, and Glenn and Sandi Bromagen to its growing list of underwriters.

"The Pisgah Community Historic Association is proud to be a sponsor of the Woodford County documentary," said Sue Fosson, treasurer of the non-profit organization. "The documentary will highlight the historical and cultural uniqueness of our county and thus will educate Woodford County residents, Kentucky residents and our out-of-state visitors about this special place. The goal of our organization is to raise awareness of our unique heritage, and this documentary will serve that goal well."

Speaking at the association's annual meeting on the topic of Unwrapping Woodford Treasures for the My Kentucky Home: Woodford County Documentary, Marvo executive producer, Sam Koltinsky, discussed Pulitzer Prize winning editorial cartoonist, Clifford Berryman, from Woodford County. "The noted 1944 winner is credited with a name we all know--"Teddy bear," stated Koltinsky. "The name is associated with Berryman's famous Theodore Roosevelt bear cartoon." Koltinsky is working with the Theodore Roosevelt Partnership in Washington. More discoveries about Berryman can be found on the Woodford County section of the Marvo website: www.marvoentertainmentgroup.com.

With a goal of preserving family history, the Calmes Family Association recently came on board as a documentary underwriter. Paul (Monte) Calmes of Austin, Texas, president of the Genealogical Society of Versailles remarked, "We have been involved with Woodford County for over 30 years. Our primary purpose for organizing was to restore the tomb of General Marquis Calmes and his wife Priscilla. We completed that project in 1990. We are thrilled to help with any project that preserves the Calmes Family history for future generations. General Marquis Calmes IV (1755-1834) is my 4th great grandfather, and I have a son named Marquis."

Midway College is the show's first educational underwriter. "The history of Woodford County is truly rich and filled with many interesting stories. The history of Midway College, its founders and its students plays such a unique role in the county's history that we could not imagine a documentary without the institution's involvement," said Dr. William B. Drake, Jr., President of Midway College. "The College will celebrate its 165th anniversary in 2012, and our partnership with 'My Kentucky Home: Woodford County' will help us to honor our past and reflect back on what impact we have had on the many lives of our students and the community."

The underwriting support from Glenn and Sandi Bromagen put the project over the halfway mark in reaching its underwriting goal. Sandi stated, "Glenn and I are pleased to support this project because it has the potential to unite a cross section of ideas, philosophies, and views. We like the spirit of Marvo's work and believe that the documentary will showcase the beauty of this area that we love and would hope to pass on to future generations."

Continuing its contributions to the documentary, the Woodford County Historical Society, with special leadership from Sally Graul, sponsored the My Kentucky Home: Woodford Documentary Support Raffle. The drawing was held with the winners as follows: Robert Chilton, 1st place—a night at Castlepost; JoAnn Gormley, 2nd place—a quilt from “First in Quilting”; and David Tussey, 3rd place—a tray gift set from “Pretty In Pink.”

The entire Marvo team extends a word of thanks to all underwriter partners for their support in the vision of “bringing Woodford’s extraordinary story to life.”
